Ancient Egyptian pharaohs built temples for their gods. Some were enormous, such as the temple of Amun at Karnak. Ordinary Egyptians couldn't go inside the temples, but they could enter the grounds on special days. They went through a gateway called a pylon. Only the pharaoh and priests could go into the temple. There was a statue of the temple god in a room called the sanctuary.

Find and copy the word that means king.

What was the name of one of the biggest temples?

Who was allowed inside the temple?
